

Drayman's Brewery Highveld South African 5 Year Old Single Malt Whisky

Drayman's South African Highveld 5 Year Old Single Malt Whisky is the first single malt whisky from the African continent to be sold in the US. This whisky is distilled from 100% pale barley malt, all of which is grown in the Swartland area of South Africa. The malt is fermented for an unusually long period of seven days with their own proprietary house yeast slurry. Fermentation is enhanced with a lactic final phase in order to enhance the smoothness of the distillate. This whisky is twice distilled, and enters the cask at 65% abv. Drayman's uses exceptionally deep cuts: using only 8-10% of the spirit. Comparatively, Macallan has some of the deepest cuts in the world and uses 16% of their spirit. The spirit rests for a minimum of five years in medium-toasted Bordeaux casks, which previously held South African wines (both red and white).

RATINGS

89 Points, Whisky Advocate: "This is a highly fragrant young whisky with aromas of peeled satsumas, zested lime, rose-buds, graham cracker, sponge cake, and a trace of aromatic spice. Light to medium-bodied with sweet orange honey, marmalade, walnut, and malt, then a slow crescendo of cocoa, spice, and cereal notes to a finish of grated chocolate. (1,200 bottles)
